

For Immediate Release

Green Market Returns to Piedmont Park This Saturday, May 3

ATLANTA (April 30, 2008) – Here's to Saturday mornings, a day on which anything goes. Feel like sleeping in? Do it. Cartoons? Not out of the question. And coffee, oh yes, don't forget the coffee. Well, this weekend, you can add one more item to your list guilty Saturday morning pleasures, when the Green Market once again takes shape in Piedmont Park.

Now in its fifth year, Green Market was one of the first in the city to feature locally grown produce, fresh-cut flowers and natural products. Since, dozens of similar farmers markets have sprung up, but none offer the scenic backdrop of the Atlanta's favorite gathering space – Piedmont Park.

There's just something special about perusing the offerings, while lazily strolling along the dogwood-lined paths that make their way around Piedmont, just inside of the 12th Street entrance to the park. Even if you don't buy anything but a pastry and (another) cup of coffee, the Green Market is yet another way to start Saturday off, on the right foot.

So if you decide to roll out of bed and want to get out this weekend, consider grabbing your favorite eco shopping bag and stopping by Piedmont for a little shameless indulging. Who knows, you may even find something else to add to your list of Saturday morning favorites.

When – Saturday mornings in May to December, from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

Where – 1071 Piedmont Avenue NE, near the 12th Street entrance to Piedmont Park.

Presented by Kaiser Permanente and with media sponsor the Atlanta Journal-Constitution.

###

For more information, contact:

Darrel McCook

Director, Communications and Special Events

(404) 875-7275, ext. 240

dmccook@piedmontpark.org